

Nostalgias

Visualising Longing

November 9 - 10, 2013

A two-day conference in
The Winter Gardens Margate, UK

This peer-reviewed conference explores the multiple concepts of nostalgia and how longing manifests itself within contemporary culture. It will examine, analyse and interpret the complexities of nostalgia and nostalgic sensibilities within art and media based practices.

For more information please visit our website: www.nostalgias.info

Nostalgia is often viewed as a form of yearning for another place or time; it has been identified as a way of managing loss, a marketing device and a tool of propaganda, by making reference to the past as a means to shape the future. The conference will consider nostalgias' different purposes across a range of art and media based practices: photography, film, television, music, archives, consumer culture, psychology and social media.

The diverse selection of papers will question a wide range of topics including; the development for 'retro' aesthetics in vernacular digital photographic practice; the use of nostalgia as an integral part of a postmodern consumption; and nostalgia as a sensory experience of the past.
